

COVID-19

Dear Clients and Friends, In response to the current COVID-19 situation, Bonnard Lawson has undertaken measures in its European and Dubai offices in order to minimize the risk of infection and ensure the safety of our staff, our clients and their families, while guaranteeing that we render uninterrupted service to our clients. As part of our business continuity plan, we implemented home office for all our lawyers and support staff and took measures to ensure that our phone and mail services remain uninterrupted. We also decided to replace all non-essential in person meetings with telephone or video conferences and restricted all national and international travel. Rest assured that all our lawyers are dedicated to maintaining a high level of service during this challenging period and stand ready to support you and your business, including for any COVID-19 related questions you may have. Furthermore, as for some good news, we are happy to inform you that our Shanghai office recently came back to full operation, although client meetings are still conducted through teleconference. We appreciate the trust you place in our firm. With best regards,
